Art Unit: 2834

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 USC 102 (b) is being anticipated by Tsuji, Ide or Wakabayashi. Each reference teaches a piezoelectric resonator package which has a base and a cap. Four electrode pads which electrically connect to the piezoelectric resonator are located in each of the four corners of the inside bottom of the base. Each reference provides a “avoidance means” to prevent short-circuiting of the electrodes. Ide and Wakabayashi explicitly teach the means in the form of cuts or slots. While not using the terminology “avoidance means”, Tsuji explicitly shows gaps between the electrodes #4, #5. Thus, each reference clearly teaches the claimed resonator package structure.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-4, 7, 10-12 and 15-19 are rejected under 35 USC 103 (a) as being unpatentable over Wakabayashi or Ide in view of Tsuji. Wakabayashi and Ide teach the basic plays electric resonator package but do not mount the piezoelectric element on to the base electrodes using conductive bumps. However, Tsuji (note #11, figure 1 (a)) teaches that it is common to use conductive bumps to mount piezoelectric elements. In some cases it allows cold fusion bonding to be used.. in other cases it allows for the precise spacing between the piezoelectric resonator and the housing. Thus, for either of these reasons it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use conductive bumps for mounting the piezoelectric elements of either Wakasayishi or Ide. Regarding the various electrode architecture connections and configurations note especially figures 7-9 of Wakabayashi and figures 7 and 8all Ide.

Claims 5, 6, 13, 14 and 20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
